

THE BOARD SELECTS.

NOMINATIONS FOR FIRE AND POLICE COMMISSIONER MADE.

The Printing Squabble Settled—Many Committee Meetings—City Hall Court News and Other Matters.

There was a called meeting yesterday afternoon of the Board of Public Improvement for the purpose of recommending the names of three suitable citizens for the position of Fire Commissioner from Clay Ward in the place of P. P. Burke, resigned, and three for the position of Police Commissioner from Jackson Ward in the place of Charles H. Phillips, resigned.

The members of the board present were Messrs. Glover (president), Brown, Trower, Taylor, White, Straus, and Elliott. Nominations for the office of Police Commissioner being in order, Mr. Brown placed the name of Charles E. Fitzsimmons before the body. Mr. Daniel A. Weinbrunn was nominated by Mr. White, while Messrs. Charles O. Gasser, and W. E. Davis were placed in nomination by Messrs. Taylor and Trower respectively.

The new ordinances. A called meeting of the Committee on Ordinances was held in the new City Hall last evening. Messrs. McDowell (chairman), Bowen, Grooms, and Murphy being present.

The object of the session was to take some action with reference to the printing of the newly-codified ordinances of the city. The Board of Aldermen had at its last meeting refused to concur in the resolution adopted by the Common Council which provided that the original resolution in regard to the printing of the code and revised city ordinances be so amended as far as the remaining in type until finally approved was concerned. The resolution also provided that the committee should reject all bids received for the work.

THE HIDE RECEIVED. The action of the board which the lower branch had approved and the matter came back yesterday for the purpose of considering what should be done in the premises. Mr. Grooms, who was father of the resolution in question, replied that he had been mistaken in his knowledge of the right of rejecting all bids, and it was therefore not necessary to ask the Council for this authority, as it was the committee then rejected all bids heretofore submitted for the work.

Mr. Grooms next moved that the committee recommend to the Council the rescinding of the resolution which requires that the city ordinances remain set up in type until finally approved. This was agreed to without objection.

On Mr. Grooms' motion also the committee recommended to the Council that the committee be instructed to include in the edition of the revised city ordinances the city charter and its amendments and all ordinances referring to railroad charters.

THE VIADUCT QUESTION. At the regular monthly meeting of the Committee on Streets and Highways, held at 7:30 o'clock, the question in regard to the granting of a charter to the Virginia Electric and Railway Company was considered. This question involves the construction of a viaduct over the city street. All parties interested in the subject are requested to appear before the committee.

POSTPONED UNTIL TO-DAY. The Committee on Health could not hold a meeting yesterday afternoon, owing to the absence of a quorum. It will assemble in the City Hall at 1 o'clock this afternoon for the transaction of the usual monthly business.

Messrs. Epps and Mountcastle, of the sub-committee of the Committee on Grounds and Buildings, had a conference yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. Presidents Dickinson, of the Board of Aldermen, and Glover, of the Common Council, to consider a resolution referred from the board of public improvement, that certain rooms in the City Hall be used under the jurisdiction of the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Council.

After some discussion, it was agreed to report to the general committee the adoption of a resolution providing that the presiding officer of either branch of the Council shall have authority to suspend the meetings of their branches to issue instructions to the Sergeant-at-Arms to have certain orders in connection with the building erected at the corner of the city clerk and the Sergeant-at-Arms, and the various committee-rooms.

CITY HALL COURT NEWS. In the Chamber Court yesterday William A. Page qualified as administrator of the estate of Lucy Armstrong Brock, and Pauline J. Thorpe qualified as executrix of the estate of John Thorpe.

Donald B. O'James presented to the City Court yesterday a petition for the removal of the Richmond Bar Association, the resolutions in respect to the death of the late W. W. Cosby. They were ordered to be heard at the next session.

Thomas C. Johnson qualified to practice law in this court. The following suits were dismissed: First National Bank of Newport v. Richmond; John B. Canepan against Joseph McDuffey; Bull & Grubbs against R. Hughes & Brothers.

There was no action in the Law and Equity Court yesterday. Harry Jenks and Ernest Wallace, two young white men, were before the Police Justice yesterday on the charge of breaking into and entering the poultry-house of Phil McDuffey and stealing therefrom a lot of fancy pigeons, valued at $5. In the absence of the counsel for the accused the case was continued until this morning.

Mr. C. M. Johnston, the newly-elected policeman of the First District, entered upon his duties yesterday morning. His boat at present is on Main street.

To Dedicate the Pickett Cottage. The Pickett cottage, recently erected at the Soldiers' Home, will be dedicated to-night. Pickett Camp, under whose auspices the cottage was built, will go out in a body, and the public will be welcome. The exercises will begin at 8 o'clock, and the following programme will be rendered, under the direction of Mr. Harry Kemp:

Duet, Miss Fannie Montgomery, and Miss Blanche Montgomery; recitation, Miss Nellie Richardson; duet, Miss Clara Mull and Miss Ella Mull; recitation, Miss Maegle Leahy; solo, Mr. Douglas L. Lettwith; recitation, Mr. C. M. Wallace; duet, Miss Minnie Clarke and Miss Alice Clarke; recitation, Miss Lulu Powell; solo, Miss Marie Chappell; banjo solo, Malcolm Shackelford; guitar solo, Miss Clara Tompkins; Imperial Quartette, Messrs. Harry Eyer, Clint, Burton, Henry Francisco, and Richard Woodbridge. The Christoforo Colombo Band have kindly offered their service to Pickett Camp for the occasion.

Mr. Lyons Chosen President. At a meeting of the persons interested in the establishment of an Industrial Home held Wednesday night, Hon. James Lyons was elected president by a unanimous vote.

The home will be opened in a few days at the Hotel Hamilton, on west Main street, of which for three weeks has been given free of cost by Dr. McGuire. The home is to be established for a worthy object, and is to furnish work to the unemployed poor and to such persons as desire to learn minor offices as a desire to reform and to learn trades.

Already a number of useful contributions have been made to the Home.

United States Circuit Court of Appeals. In the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Judges Goff, Simonton, and Hughes sitting, the following business was transacted yesterday:

Ex-parte Joseph M. Street, in the case of Charles E. Lewis vs. Baltimore and Lehigh Railway Company, from the Circuit Court of Maryland. Petition for removal on the Circuit Court of Maryland. Street vs. Street was argued by E. Beverly Slater and S. A. Williams for plaintiff, and by J. H. Williams for defendant.

THE DISTRICT RATED NO. 1.

The Revenue Offices Found to Be in First-Class Condition.

About ten days ago United States Internal-Revenue-Agent Spaulding examined the offices of Collector William Ryan, of this district. He spent two days in Richmond, and made a most searching examination of the head office, from Richmond he went to Norfolk and examined the branch office there, and from Norfolk he went to Petersburg. The result of his visit to the district was highly gratifying to Mr. Ryan and his deputies.

When Colonel Woodcock lay examined the offices of the district a few months ago everything was found to be in a thoroughly satisfactory condition, and Mr. Ryan's office got a high rating on the strength of his report. To-day the Richmond District ranks even higher, if possible, than it did after the former examination. A letter received from the Commissioner of the Internal Revenue was worthy of being framed. Not only were the cash accounts and the stamp accounts absolutely correct, but all record books and the general conduct of the offices were in first-class condition. It gave the commissioner pleasure, he said, to grade Collector Ryan's district No. 1.

There are sixty-six collectors of Internal Revenue in the United States, and comparatively few of them rank in Class No. 1.

Mr. Ryan's chief deputy is Mr. W. H. Tyler, one of the most experienced revenue accountants and managers in this part of the country. His cashier is Mr. Allan Talbott, Jr., formerly of the Citizens' Bank, and a most expert accountant, and his district deputies are Mr. E. B. Cook, and Mr. A. P. Sheld. His deputy in charge of the Norfolk branch is Dr. John M. Pleasant, who filled the position most acceptably during Mr. Cleveland's former administration, and his deputy in charge of the Petersburg branch is Miss Kate J. McHugh, a well-informed and thoroughly business-like lady. There are eleven deputies and clerks in the Richmond office, three in the Petersburg office, and three in the Norfolk office, and gaugers distributed throughout the district.

Testimonial to Mr. Miller. The members of the Polk Miller combination will give a full testimonial entertainment to Mr. Miller on his return from his southern tour at Richmond, this Wednesday, May 24th, at 8 o'clock. The "old guard" will be assisted by the "new guard," Captain E. Leslie Spencer, Captain W. H. Miller, Captain C. V. and Walker Light Guard, Captain Frank Cunningham, Mr. Miller will give his latest recital, and the programme also consists of negro sketches, banjo picking, plantation melodies, old-time songs, and choruses, and a general revival of the "good old times." There will be a camp scene and sham battle and the "old guard" will wear the time-honored uniforms of the old Virginia Regiment. The sale of seats will commence at the Theatre Box-office Monday 28th, at 9 A. M. There will undoubtedly be a big house.

Property Transfers. Richmond: Margaret A. Blunt to Thomas A. Westerman, 25 feet on east side Seventeenth street between Cedar and Washington, $1,300.

Affred Lee and wife to C. E. Wellford, 25 feet on south side Dock street nearly opposite Twenty-seventh, subject to deed of trust of $5,000, $6,000.

John G. McCue and wife to William C. Smith, 20 feet on south side Hospital street between Fifth and Seventh, $1,600.

Colonel Capers to Lecture. Colonel Henry L. Capers, of "Charleston," will lecture at the Academy of Music on Wednesday evening, May 24, at 8:15 o'clock, on the subject of "Monuments." The lecture, which is pronounced by the southern press to be a very fine one, is the subject of the most interesting of the Southern Memorial Association of Mobile, Ala. The lecturer is well known and has a high reputation as a public speaker.

Capital Notes. The Governor has offered a reward of $5 for the arrest and delivery to the proper authorities of Warner Mills, charged with assault upon Almond Groves, in Warren county.

Mr. T. B. Fitzgerald, of Danville, has resigned from the Board of Visitors of the Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College.

COXEY WRITING A POEM. A Fin de Siecle Illad Illustrated by Carl Browne.

Tasso is to be out-Tassoed and Bunyan out-Bunyaned. The story of Goliath and his crusaders on the walls of Jerusalem, and Christian and Hopeful struggling for the Celestial city are to be eclipsed by a great cartoon by Carl Browne, written in the District of Columbia, commemorating the march from Massillon and the squelching they received at the hands of the police on the steps of the Capitol. This work is to be their illad; their Odyssey will, it will appear later. Their boat will contain fifty full-page illustrations, one of the most artistic being Carl Browne's cartoon of Coxey as chambermaid on the first night of the march. The cartooned leader is pictured in disheveled, sweeping the cell and putting it in order for comfortable occupancy.

When seen at the jail on Wednesday, says the Washington Post, all three of the imprisoned Commonwealthers seemed cheerful. Browne had recovered his spirits, though he was not yet reconciled to the vaccination to which he was compelled to submit. He said the jail physician told him he came there a sick man and needed immediate treatment. He thought sentence might build him up and let him get pretty well prepared for his work that he would have otherwise been. It is a case of making haste slowly. He was proud of a dish of mutton chops, a slice of strawberry shortcake, and a bunch of flowers sent him by a lady of the city.

COXEY'S BIG MAIL. Mr. Coxey receives a heavy mail every day, while numbers of people choose the sure and speedy way of sending him a telegram from Cincinnati tendering $200 to Mr. Coxey's campaign fund.

The camp of the "Wealers at Highlands" was without incident of particular interest yesterday. The men received excellent supplies for their immediate wants. Representative Pence sent them 10 pounds of good coffee, 25 pounds were also received from Mr. A. W. Faust, and 19 pounds from Mr. Dunne.

There is general rejoicing over the recovery of one of Coxey's horses, which wandered off some days ago. The men are sleeping pretty well, and most of them have been provided with coats so that they can sleep on something else besides damp ground.

DESERTED FROM THE ARMY. Harry J. Conner deserted from the ranks of Coxey's Commonwealth army Tuesday morning, because of insufficiency of food. For two days previous he had received a very small allowance of food, and the only thing he had to eat was dry hardtack, which he was compelled to desert. He had no difficulty in getting plenty to eat during the day, but having no place to sleep he crawled into an empty wagon on the Seventh-street road, and was sleeping soundly when awakened by Officer Bremmnerman, and placed under arrest for vagrancy. He told his story before Judge Kimball yesterday, and out of goodness of heart he was given a ticket for the next thirty days free of charge.

Would You Like to "Shake" Malaria, in the case of getting rid of it, instead of having it shake you? Then use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters and give it the brand and final "shake." This standard medicine eradicates it root and branch, and tortures the system against it. Most effective, too, in cases of indigestion, constipation, nervousness, rheumatic and kidney complaints.

Our facilities for executing all kinds of job printing are unsurpassed. Send us your orders and you will be pleased with our work and prices.

THE DISPATCH CO.

THE NEW PRESS CLUB

ADDRESS OF THE PRESIDENT UPON ACCEPTING THE CHAIR.

The Organization to Have a Beneficial Feature—Will Run a Moonlight July 3d—New Members.

Though less than three weeks old the Dominion Press Club has fifty-one members, and its prospects are the brightest.

The indications are that by the time the organization is fully perfected and a constitution and by-laws are prepared and adopted the club will have 75 or more persons on its rolls.

The third meeting in the interest of the movement was held yesterday afternoon in the office of the Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College, in the Chamber of Commerce building. There was quite a good attendance, and the knights of the quill spent an hour or two talking over the club and its scope, plans of operation, &c.

THE PRESIDENT'S CHEERING WORDS. Mr. W. D. Chesterman, who was unanimously elected president at the last meeting, was present, and in acknowledging the compliment paid him, said:

Brethren of the Press: On yesterday I received a letter from your committee informing me in very agreeable terms of my election to the presidency of this club, and requesting my presence here this evening. I have come to say that I accept the position to which your favor has called me, and that I regard it as a signal honor. My sympathy has been with you from the beginning, and I should have attended your previous meetings but for engagements which I could not recall.

The very fact that our professional work frequently forces us to leave the city and jar this word may be appropriately misinterpreted ("laws") with one another, makes a club such as this more than ordinarily useful, if we would know our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "badly" accepted by his competitor that there is "no news—no news—no news" but inasmuch as it is an experience from which none of us can exempt our united indignity, it ought to be able to find the antidote—if there is one. At any rate we have it in our power, when other resources fail, to have our brethren better, and learn to give one another more of our confidence and sympathy. I am not quite sure what expedient we shall be able to adopt to make a man feel happy who has been "badly" accepted, especially if he has been "bad